White Christmas (1954) ~ Bob Wallace (Crosby) and Phil Davis (Kaye) are army buddies from World War II who have become a very successful song and dance team. They meet up with Betty (Clooney) and Judy (Ellen) Haynes, the sisters of another of their army buddies at a nightclub in Florida. Phil sees that Bob is attracted to Betty, so he talks Bob into following the girls to their next show; an inn in Vermont. When they get to the inn, it is practically empty because there is no snow. As they start to leave, the men learn that the innkeeper is their beloved former commanding general from World War II. They decide to stay to try to drum up some business for the old man. They bring their whole show up to the inn which helps, but is not quite enough. Betty mistakenly thinks that Bob and Phil are taking advantage of the general's misfortune to get free publicity, so she gets angry at him. Judy and Phil think that Betty is upset because she is afraid to fall in love with Bob because she has to look after Judy, so Judy and Phil pretend to get engaged. Betty leaves for New York to get away from Bob. When the general's request to rejoin the army is denied, Bob goes on national TV to get the men from his World War II division to surprise the general on Christmas Eve. Betty sees the show, and realizes Bob really is a good guy so she returns to Vermont to participate in the big show. One of the all time best feel good Christmas movies with some truly amazing song and dance numbers.

Decked out for the holidays!

We're stepping it up this holiday season and making Town Square even more festive. Over the weekend crews will begin transforming the downtown from fall to winter. Twinkle lights will be strung through the trees, although they will not be lit until after the Hometown Holidays Lighted Parade. Fresh greens and berries will fill our planters and fresh garland and wreaths will also be strung with lights and hung throughout Town Square. Additional plans are in the making.

The lights will remain in the trees after the holidays to add a festive feel to Town Square during special events.

Listen for Your Chance to Win

During the week of November 16th 96.3 WDVD's Morning Show (Blaine & Lisa with Allyson) will award five (5) listeners an evening out in Downtown Northville that will include a "Movies at the Marquis" dinner and movie package.

The five (5) lucky listeners to call in will receive one package that includes two (2) tickets to the November 21st pre-series showing of "White Christmas" and one of (5) $50 gift certificates to the following participating Downtown Northville restaurants:
