Erik Olson, An Outside View
January 7-29, 2011

Be a pART of it! The Northville Art House proudly presents the work of artist-teacher Erik Olson. Mr. Olson's works are oil portraits of homes and structures in various stages of repair. Some large, some quite small, the paintings reflect our culture and society and how the structures we erect accommodate our desires but rarely account for consequences. Viewed in the abstract, the buildings become both the outward manifestations and the victims of our desires.

Erik Olson received his B.A. from Art Center College of Design in 1987 and free-lanced in illustration until 2001. He received his M.F.A. in Painting from Wayne State University in Detroit in 2010. He has exhibited his paintings in various group shows, including the Williamson Gallery in Pasadena and the Museum of Contemporary Art in Detroit. Mr. Olson is currently a full-time associate professor at the College for Creative Studies in Detroit.

The show will open in our upper gallery with an artist reception Friday, January 7, from 6-9 p.m. The show will continue through January 29 during the Art House Gallery hours (Wednesdays-Saturdays, 1-5 p.m.). For additional information, call 248-344-0497 or visit www.northvillearts.org.

The Art House is located at 215 W. Cady Street and is a facility of the Northville Arts Commission. Admission to Art House shows is always free and open to the public.

Tips from WhizBang! Training

But no matter how good you are at assortment planning, there's bound to be a few items that didn't sell like you hoped they would. Time to take the mark-down!

You want to free up the cash in those slow-movers to buy new, better selling items for spring AND you want to lower stock levels so you don't have as much to count during your physical inventory in a few weeks.

One particularly useful markdown at this time of the year is a "buy-one-get-one free". This promotion accomplishes two major goals: Deep discount (up to 50%) encourages customers to buy. Moves twice as much merchandise to lower stock levels.

Here are a some ways to use the buy-one-get-one deal to strategically get rid of your slow-moving stock.

- You have a lot of one particular item: Do the standard, buy one widget, get one widget free. Gift givers often have multiple people to buy for that they'd like to give the same or similar gifts. This promo makes it a no-brainer for them to choose.
- You have some slow moving colors in an item: Buy an aquamarine widget (the slow moving color), get a second widget of any color free. This will help move all widgets, but specifically the aqua widget.
- You have some slow moving sizes: Buy a large widget (the slow moving size), get your choice of small or medium widget for free. This one's good because the markdown will be less than 50% and you will be pushing that least popular size.
- You have two similar items that are over-stocked: Buy a widget, get a thing-a-ma-jig for free. Again, great for gift givers who want to give similar but different gifts to 2 sisters, 2 teachers, 2 neighbors...

Treasure broker Cari Cucksey gives new life to dusty relics in HGTV's "Cash & Cari" .

The new show features broker extraordinaire, Cari Cucksey on the lookout for hidden treasures.

During the series, Cari and her team search estate sales, flea markets, dusty attics and cluttered garages to find hidden or overlooked antiques, collectibles, memorabilia and decorative objects. Whether it's a vintage Chanel gown left behind at a dry cleaners or a Capodimonte porcelain statue, Cari's expert eye will spot the undiscovered gems that could lead to big bucks.

Viewers follow Cari as she helps families dig through piles of personal possessions and then prepares the bounty for sale. For Cari, it's the thrill of the hunt, so in some instances she buys the contents of an entire home, packing up the goods and refurbishing the items for sale at RePurpose, her antique resale shop in Northville located at 133 W. Main.

"Cash & Cari" will air on Monday evenings on HGTV at 10:00 p.m. ET/PT.
